

Diploma thesis “Czechoslovak-French relations in the years 1918 – 1939” describe the phenomenon France in Czechoslovak foreign policy. Internal policy of the First Czechoslovak Republic was determined by foreign policy more than any other state. A key principle had become a focus on western democratic powers, especially France, which strive to maintain the status quo after the First World War.